

The older I grow, the more exciting life is

Joanne, Ng Kei Ian

My father says, "The older I grow, the less hair I have." My mother says, 'The older I grow, the more wrinkles I have'. My elder sister studying in Form Six says, 'The older I grow, the more responsibilities and burdens I have to bear.' But for me, the older I grow, the more I enjoy my life. Ladies and gentlemen, the topic of my speech today is "The older I grow, the more exciting life is".

Before I entered kindergarten, life was already full of fun. I would spend the whole day in the park playing on the seesaw and swing, sliding down a slide and chasing the other kids. Each new day was just another happy day.

Since I started going to school, I have realized that life is becoming more exciting and challenging. Every day I have new things to learn and new problems to solve. Every year I make new friends. But learning is fun; school life is never boring and I never have time to feel bored. I remember my first recitation contest in primary two and my first speech contest in primary six. Although I was nervous, it was exciting. At this moment, nothing is more exciting and amazing than sharing my experiences with you here. I enjoy every moment on the stage.

I am very curious about my future. Many questions have crossed my mind. Will I be patient like my Dad? Will I be cheerful like my Mom? Or will I be hard-working like my sister? What will I do when I grow up? Will I marry a handsome guy? Will I still find life exciting in the future? My future is full of question marks and this is exactly the reason why life to me is more exciting the older I grow.

The future is full of uncertainties and life is unpredictable. Life is like walking on a seesaw; each new step becomes more difficult yet more challenging and exciting. But I'm not afraid because I believe every cloud has a silver lining. Meanwhile, I will continue to work hard and set further goals to strive for. To be able to overcome difficulties in the future, I must equip myself. I am confident that good preparations will make my life colourful like a rainbow. I love this rainbow; I love my exciting life. I will embrace each new day with enthusiasm, hope and anticipation.

Comments :

It's pleasant to read this speech as it shows the writer's strong passion, dream and positive attitude towards life. It's good to use the proverb "every cloud has a silver lining" in the appropriate context. However, it would be better if she could illustrate how she is going to equip herself for this changeable world.